We're going to see challenges of growing population and more intensive cultivation. Some of the challenges posed by climate change are intense weather events and more intense precipitation. There is interest in collaboration and partnerships to further healthy soils initiatives, and to work with the farm communities. The FRRRC met in Denver in October, 2015. The FRRRC will have calls over the next few months, and will meet in DC later next spring. Jeff Tiberi stated if the FRRRC will have a DC meeting, and he

C. 2016 Agenda

Secretary Witte commented on the agenda for 2016 that abandoned mine cleanup is an issue. He also stated that he would like to ask the Director of the New Mexico Conservation District to talk about the roadblocks and challenges of these kinds of cleanups. We've got to find better ways to approach it.

Commissioner Cope said that it would be good to weigh in on climate change impacts on communities and the costs of climate change. We need more economic input. Mark Rupp stated that the week of November 30, 2015, the EPA folk met with the National Association of Counties (NACo), the National League of Cities (NLC), and other groups. EPA has been working with states, regulatory agencies, utilities, etc. on a clean power plant rule. We need more engagement with locals on energy-saving activities.

Jack Bowles concurred that the recommendations are awesome. I've never seen 11 recommendation letters before. We've had 2 grand slams. Thanked all SCAS members, to Fran, and to the interns.

Mr. Tiberi had another consideration. With the Clean Power Plan, maybe there should be a letter to include local governments as these energy-saving committees are formed it would be beneficial.
