

Andrew Schreiber, Economist in EPA's National Center for Environmental Economics

Research Interests: Computable general equilibrium modeling; environmental and natural resource economics; computational economics.

Biography: Andrew Schreiber is an economist at the National Center for Environmental Economics at the U.S. EPA in Washington, DC. He joined the agency in 2018 and currently conducts research on general equilibrium modeling and issues pertaining to ambient air pollution concentrations. Andrew has a PhD in applied economics (2018) and BA in economics (2012), both from the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

E-mail: schreiber.andrew@epa.gov

Peer-Reviewed Publications:

"Discrimination in Ambient Air Pollution Monitoring?" (with Corbett Grainger). In AEA Papers and Proceedings (Vol. 109, pp. 277-82). 2019.

"Distributional Impacts of Energy-Heat Cross-Subsidization" (with Corbett Grainger and Fan Zhang). Energy Policy, 125, pp.65-81. 2019.

"Mining and Community Economic Growth" (with Steve Deller). Review of Regional Studies, 42(2), pp.121-141. 2012.